Renewi strengthens cooperation with AEB by signing 10 year off-take contract

Leading waste-to-product company, Renewi plc (LSE: RWI) has widened and strengthened its current cooperation with AEB by signing an important 10-year off-take contract to supply refuse derived fuel (RDF) to AEB's facility in Amsterdam.

Renewi will supply AEB up to 1 million tonnes of refuse-derived fuel (RDF) over the course of the contract, which will be produced mainly by its 25-year East London ("ELWA") operations. The RDF will be used to generate over 5% of the 1 million MWh of electricity generated at the facility each year which in total generates enough energy to power 320,000 households. The heat from that facility is also being used for district heating in the Amsterdam area.

The contract provides a secure off-take outlet for the remaining RDF produced from Renewi's mechanical biological treatment (MBT) operations in its ELWA contract. Renewi treats a mixed household waste stream, separating the organic fraction and creating a high quality RDF for the production of energy at AEB. It builds on the success of Renewi's relationship with the ELWA Authority that has delivered mutual benefits and increases diversion from landfill. It also guarantees significant input in to the AEB facility.

The contract expands on the current one year agreement between Renewi's UK operations and AEB. It will run to the end of 2027, with an option to extend after this period. It also includes flexibility for Renewi to provide some of the RDF from any of its UK or Dutch facilities, allowing the company to capitalise on any fluctuations in RDF availability across its portfolio.

James Priestley, Managing Director of Renewi's Municipal Division said:

"This new cooperation with AEB results from the breadth of Renewi's international footprint as a newly integrated business. We are making good progress with our recovery plan in the Municipal Division and securing this contract, in addition to the recent 20 year RDF contract at Ferrybridge, is another important step forward. The new AEB contract provides Renewi with another long-term fuel outlet for our largest PFI contract, which had previously been exposed to market volatility. We look forward to delivering our high quality fuel to AEB and helping to generate green energy and heat for homes and local businesses across Amsterdam."

Sharon Lea, Managing Director for the East London Waste Authority said:

“We welcome this initiative which supports the Authority’s ambition to further increase the diversion of waste away from landfill which already stands at over 90%.”
